

The UpGlo Monthly

SEPTEMBER 2026

With Fall coming to much of the country, we are reminded that change is always around the corner. But through every season, UpGlo's commitment to our community is steadfast: We help immigrant professionals reclaim careers in the fields they've trained for abroad. Our philosophy is pretty simple: When immigrant professionals thrive, we all thrive.

Let's Open Some Doors

There are so many ways to get involved with the work we do to make a difference for global talent. One is to volunteer your time and experience to help provide immigrant professionals with career guidance, job coaching, and resources that help them get back to the careers they love.

"Being a volunteer isn't just about helping others. It's about self-discovery. I think Upwardly Global has helped me even more than the many jobseekers that it helps every day—learning my strengths, finding my own voice, and knowing that I can really help people who are struggling. That's something no paycheck can give."

We're Out There Listening to You

We're headed to Chicago and San Francisco in the coming weeks to talk all things workforce development and why so many work-authorized, highly trained immigrant professionals are stocking shelves and driving rideshares when there are still so many vacant positions in critical fields like healthcare and tech. We'll be talking about AI, of course, and what solutions are available to us all to help the country prosper. We'd love to see you at one of our events and hear your thoughts.

Promise Renewed in NYC:

Private reception and dinner with chef Marcus Samuelsson

A Special Night with Chef Marcus Samuelsson

We are so excited to welcome Chef Marcus for a night of connection, conversation, and food. We hope you'll join Chef Marcus and the UpGlo team for a reception and sit-down dinner, both with a curated menu, to support our work to help immigrant professionals return to the careers they've trained for.

UpGlo Connect
Partner Spotlight

Rebuilding Careers in Nashville

The NICE and UpGlo partnership is creating more opportunities for refugee and immigrant professionals in Nashville, and the impact is growing. In 2025, nearly three times as many NICE clients completed UpGlo industry pathways compared with 2024, gaining access to career resources, skills training, certifications, and support to move toward meaningful careers. See how this partnership is turning learning into opportunity, one professional at a time.

Put Your Pitch to Work: How to Network with Confidence

Put Your Pitch to Work: How to Network with Confidence

This summer we shared how to put together an elevator pitch. But what is a pitch without a network to share it with? It may seem intimidating to begin networking in the US as a newcomer, but don't worry; we'll show you how to research, prepare, and create opportunity so you can build your network one connection at a time.
